

Every field, fully in focus. Look deeper.

“Deep Fields is a handful of deep-soiled fields on a high, cool ridge above the Northern California fog. It is made by a former astrophotographer who now farms by the same sky she used to watch. A few small fields, farmed slowly and read honestly, in eight grape-forward wines. Nothing is rushed and nothing is hidden.”

THE 30-SECOND PITCH

Say it slowly. It lands at thirty seconds, and it is the whole brand: a few small fields, one farmer, the sky, and patience you can taste.

MARNE OKAFOR · FOUNDER AND WINEMAKER, ASTROPHOTOGRAPHER FIRST

THE FIVE TAKEAWAYS

- 1 A handful of deep-soiled fields on one ridge, each read on its own.
- 2 A founder story that sells itself: astrophotographer to farmer, farming by the sky.
- 3 Farming is the product, not a badge: biodynamic, regenerative, low-intervention, and buyers ask for it.
- 4 Eight wines, eight clear roles: one right wine for every account.
- 5 Sell the depth: patience, place, and restraint, made literal from soil to glass.

THE PLACE, IN ONE BREATH

High, cool, and above the fog: dark cold nights keep the acidity, deep dry-farmed soils give concentration without irrigation, and an unhurried season trades weight for length. Two clean facts beat ten data points.

FARMED BY THE SKY

Farmed and certified: biodynamic, regenerative organic, and organic.

THEY SAY / YOU SAY · THE FIVE OBJECTIONS

"It is too expensive for my list."

YOU SAY

"It is priced for what it is: hand-farmed, dry-farmed, biodynamic fields. Start with Daybreak by the glass, where the margin makes the case for you."

"Natural wines are unstable."

YOU SAY

"Low intervention, not no intervention. Clean, stable, and I stand behind every bottle."

"Nobody is asking for it."

YOU SAY

"Your guests are asking for exactly this: biodynamic, single-site, a story your staff can tell. Pour one glass for your team and let them ask the questions."

"I have never heard of this ridge."

YOU SAY

"A single site you can taste beats a famous name you cannot. Your list gets there first."

"Allocated? I cannot build on that."

YOU SAY

"The allocation is the reason to commit now. First in line beats waiting."
